Trane Opens Parts Center in Appleton, Offering More Than 100 Different Parts and Supply Lines

Appleton, Wis., August 10, 2006 – Trane is making heating, ventilation and air conditioning (HVAC) parts more accessible than ever for local service contractors and building owners by opening a new Parts Center in Appleton. Located at 2500 North Lynndale Drive, the new facility will operate from 7 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The new Parts Center will offer a full line of Trane and non-Trane parts, including more than 100 of the most recognized wholesale parts and supply lines in the industry. The Trane Parts Center will stock OEM spec parts for Trane equipment and a broad offering of aftermarket parts for almost any HVAC system.

“Our customers continue to tell us they don’t want to travel more than 20 minutes to purchase Trane and non-Trane parts and that they want greater flexibility in how they buy them,” says Ken Eggers, Trane district manager. “The Parts Center opening in Appleton represents our desire to make HVAC parts available in the way our customers want to purchase them.”

The opening of the new parts center coincides with the move of Trane’s Appleton Commercial Sales Office, formerly located at 3225 West Spencer Street, to newly expanded quarters that are also located at the new Lynndale Drive facility.

In addition to visiting the Appleton Parts Center, customers can purchase parts through an express-order system that is ready to ship any stock, emergency-repair-order part the same day.

The opening of the Appleton Parts Center brings the number of Trane Parts Centers in Wisconsin to three, staffed by a total of nine dedicated parts sales specialists. The centers have been exceeding the needs of service contractors and building owners for more than 41 years, with locations at 11400 West Theodore Trecker Way in West Allis and 4801 Voges Road in Madison.
